Background: The CPHWR Initiative is a project being conducted by the Department of Toxic Substances Control (DTSC) to develop, implement, and evaluate methods to reduce hazardous waste generated, treated or disposed of in California. Two key elements of the CPHWR Initiative are the involvement of an Advisory Committee, comprised of representatives from different stakeholder groups, and the engagement of community members and other stakeholders to identify concerns related to hazardous waste generation and disposal. DTSC, with input from CPHWR Initiative Advisory Committee (Advisory Committee) members, will select up to three pilot-scale projects to reduce hazardous wastes that are generated in significant quantities, can pose substantial risks or hazards to human health or the environment, and are generated, treated or disposed in communities that are disproportionately burdened by multiple sources of pollution.

Meeting: The next meeting of the Advisory Committee for the Community Protection and Hazardous Waste Initiative will convene via conference call on July 20th. The meeting agenda will be a continuation of the May 25th meeting and will include the Advisory Committee's final review, evaluation, and recommendations on project proposals, prior to final pilot project selection. DTSC will also provide an opportunity for members of the public to ask questions and provide comments during the call.
